It can happen that you have to leave.

And it blows so much that you forget who you are and where you come from.

And you land someplace.

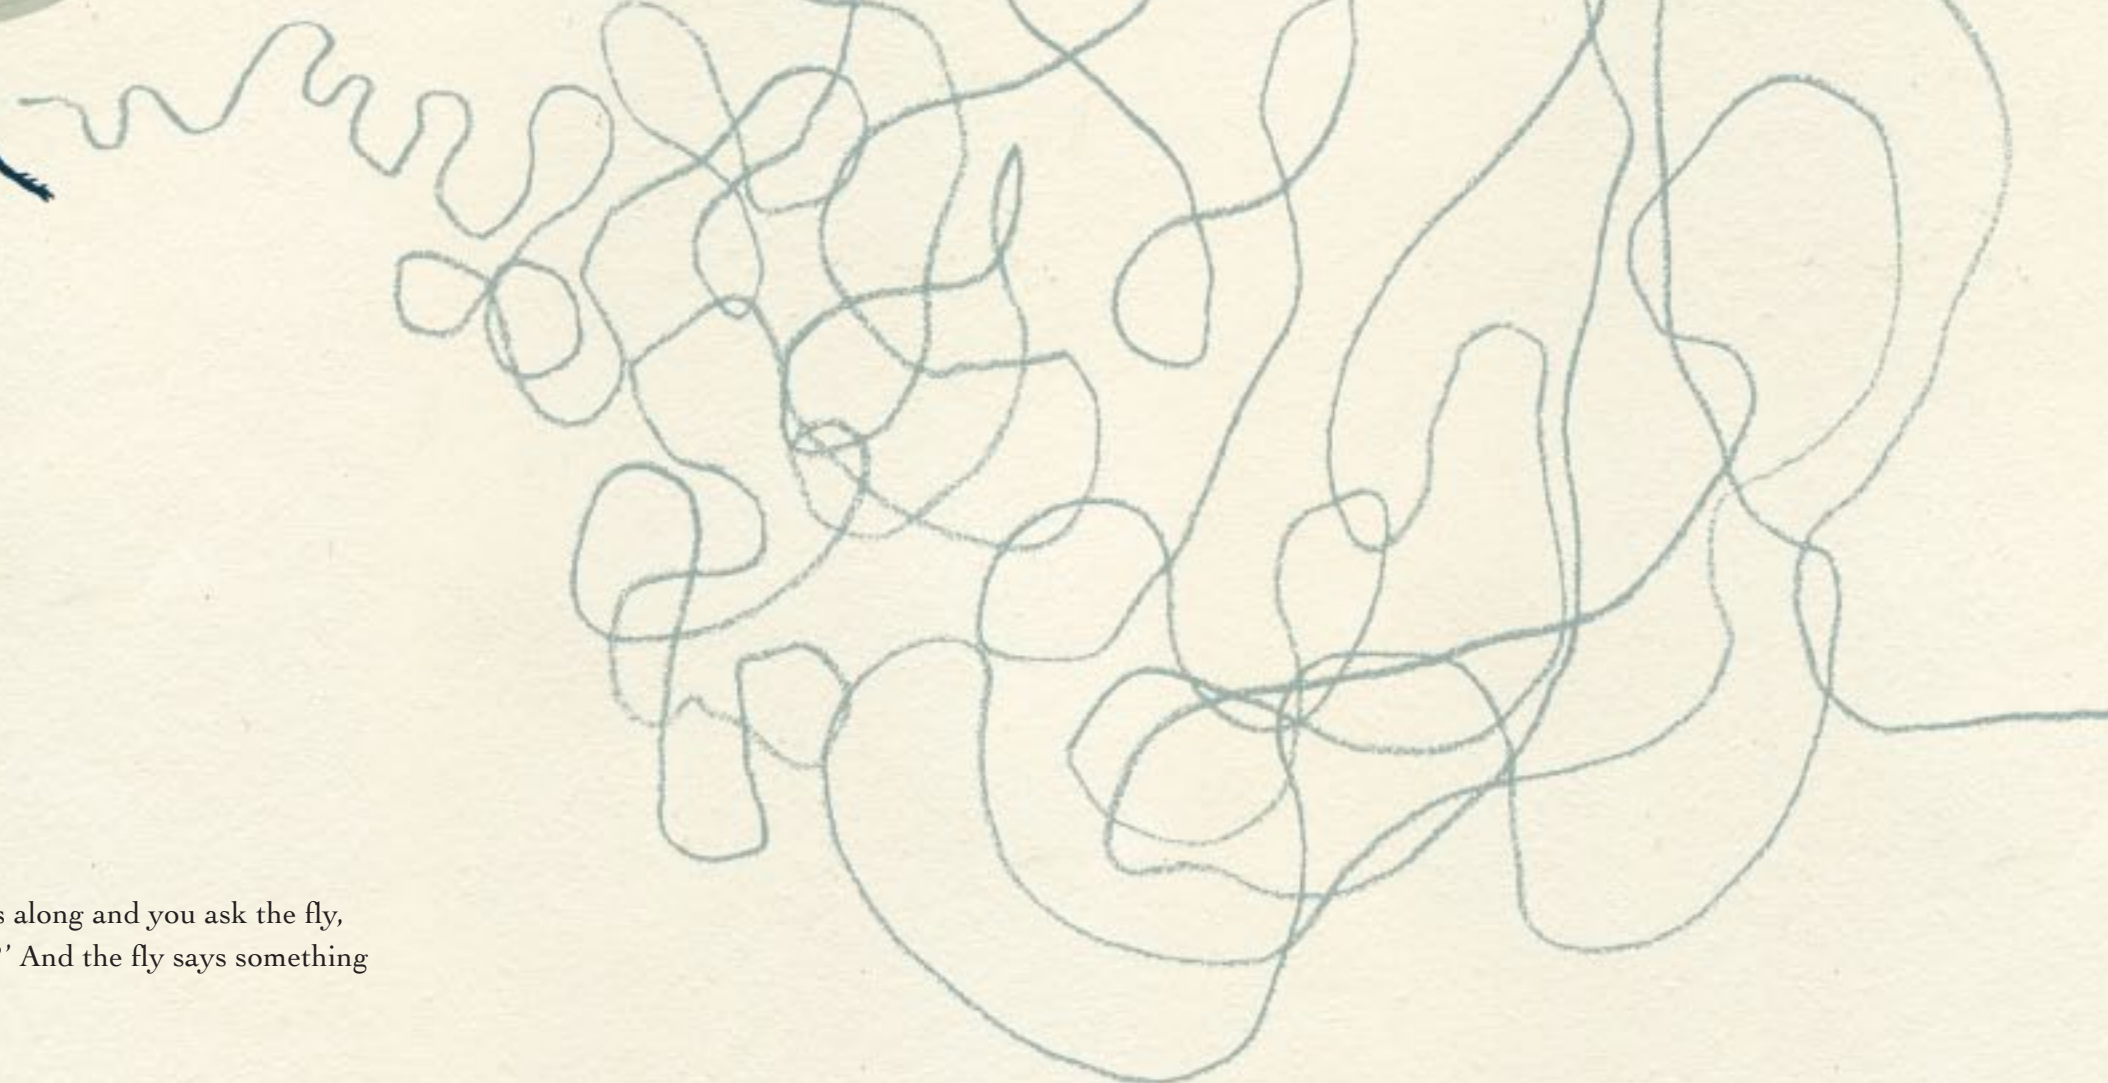

You think it's strange there.

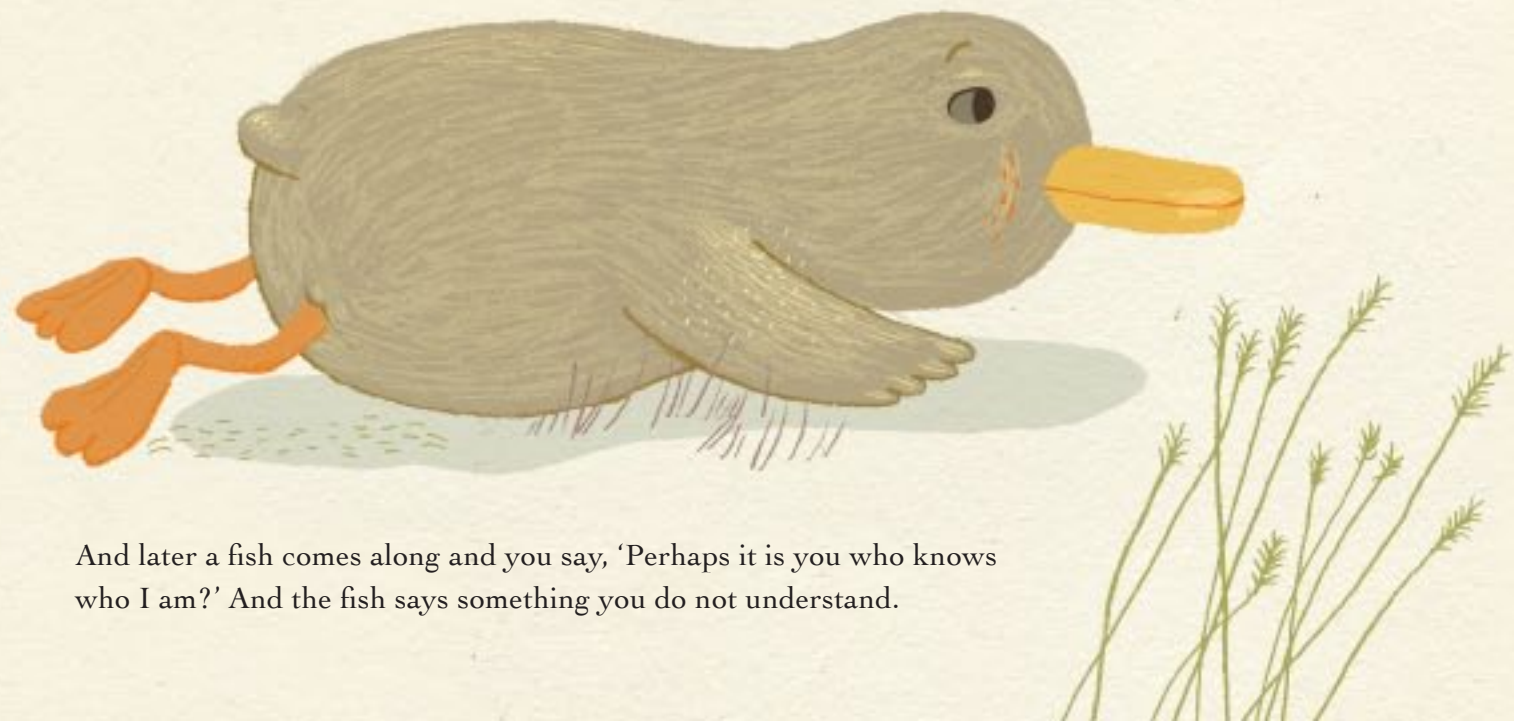

And you wait and wait and wait for what might happen.

And suddenly a fly comes along and you ask the fly,
'Do you know who I am?' And the fly says something you do not understand.

And later a fish comes along and you say, 'Perhaps it is you who knows who I am?' And the fish says something you do not understand.
