Why Do The Russians Vote For Putin?

In 2006, Bernhard L. Mohr moved to Moscow – a lone Norwegian in a Russian workplace, in a time when many still considered a democratic development in Russia to be both possible and likely. Ten years later he returns to meet his old colleagues to get the answer to that major question: Why do the Russians vote for Putin? Why do they keep up the support of what with Western eyes may seem as an increasingly repressive regime?

Bernhard L. Mohr

Bernhard L. Mohr (b. 1978) has been working as a journalist and publishing editor, as well as with business development and leadership within the Media Business. Why do the Russians vote for Putin? (Hvorfor stemmer russerne på Putin?) is his first book.
