Ill Will

The Cold Case Quartet #3

A cold case heats up as the body of a young woman is found in the forest. She's been killed and dismembered in a manner that's eerily reminiscent of serial killer Tom Kerr's signature m.o. But Kerr is currently serving his fourth year behind bars and couldn't possibly have committed the murder. Everything points instead to the man the press named The Other - Kerr's never-found partner.

Adrian Stiller prepares a reconstruction in which Kerr will lead the police to the remains of an old victim. The grave is in Eftang and Wisting is put in charge of security. His daughter Line has been recruited to document it all. But the reconstruction goes terribly wrong and when Kerr escapes, Wisting suddenly finds himself being made the scapegoat as both Kerr and The Other are free once more.

Pure evil in a solid Wisting crime novel. / .../ Jørn Lier Horst delivers credible crime fiction as always.
