Death Deserved

Blix & Ramm #1

Oslo, 2018. Former queen of long-distance running Sonja Nordstrøm never shows at the launch of her controversial autobiography, Always No. 1. When celebrity blogger Emma Ramm goes to Nordstrøm's home later that day, she finds the door unlocked and signs of a struggle inside. A bib number – "1" – has been pinned to the television.

Police officer Alexander Blix still bears the emotional scars of a hostage situation nineteen years earlier, when he fired his gun and killed the father of a five-year-old girl. Blix is given the job of heading the missing person investigation. Traces of Nordstrøm soon show up at different locations, but the timing of the clues' appearance seems to be carefully calculated. Is it all part of a greater plan they're not yet seeing?

Circumstances force Blix and Emma to work together. Both are determined to find and stop the merciless killer with an obvious taste for the dramatic. He's hungry for attention. And he's just gotten his first taste of it...

Death Deserved is the first installment in the Blix & Ramm series.

["Death Deserved"] is resoundingly thrilling. /.../ All in all, I'd like to call this novel a new high point in Norwegian crime fiction – one of this year's best as far as I'm concerned.

- Fyens Stiftstidende, Denmark

Two of Norway's greatest crime and thriller writers have teamed up and written a high-powered, excellent crime novel. The two's teamwork is successful right from page one. /.../ It engages the reader, and you're carried from page to page. /.../ The novel holds international standard.

- Tvedestrandsposten, Norway

[A] psychological serial killer thriller steeped in the mold of a British TV drama. /.../ The transitions are elegant, the prose understated and without frills. /.../ This is, quite simply, lovely summertime entertainment that a wonderful mix of British crime and Nordic Noir.

- Østlands-Posten, Norway

Jørn Lier Horst, Thomas Enger

Jørn Lier Horst (b. 1970) and Thomas Enger (b. 1973) are the internationally bestselling Norwegian authors of the William Wisting and Henning Juul series respectively.

Jørn Lier Horst first rose to literary fame with his No. 1 internationally bestselling William Wisting series. A former investigator in the Norwegian police, Horst imbues all his works with an unparalleled realism and suspense. To date, Horst has authored two crime fiction series for adults and two crime fiction series for younger readers, both of which are the most popular children's book series in their respective age categories.

Thomas Enger is the journalist-turned-author behind the internationally acclaimed and bestselling Henning Juul series. Enger's trademark has become a darkly gritty voice paired with key social messages and tight plotting. Besides writing fiction for both adults and young adults, Enger also works as a music composer.
