Where the Darkness Lives

CLIMATE RESEARCHER NINA BERGER is in prison waiting to be convicted on kidnapping charges, when her victim, the billionaire Christian Falchner, offers to help her.

Can she really trust him or is he masterminding an act of revenge? Nina goes for broke and soon finds herself in the middle of a life or death struggle.

Where the Darkness Lives is a psychological thriller that takes the reader along on a spine-tingling journey into the depths of human infamy.

Lisbeth Pettersen

Lisbeth Pettersen has a professional background as freelance journalist for the Norwegian media outlets Dagbladet, NRK, KK, and Tara. For many years she has written her own column about mindfulness for Norway's largest woman's magazine, Tara. Lisbeth has cultivated a mindfulness practice for more than 25 years and in 2013 her book "Live More with Mindfulness" (Lev mer med mindfulness) was published. She also has professional experience as an entrepreneur and as a general manager in the travel industry. Where the Darkness Lives, is the second stand-alone book from the series about climate researcher Nina Berger.
