

Vigmostad & Bjørke AS 2020
40 pages
Original title: Lillebror er ny som månen
ISBN: 9788241950254

FOREIGN RIGHTS

Vigmostad & Bjørke
Elisabeth Godal Sheehy
Rights Manager / Editor
Elisabeth.sheehy@vigmostadbjorke.no

RIGHTS SOLD TO

Albania

OTHER TITLES

When am I old enough to shoot my father

Åse Ombustvedt and Jens Kristensen (ill.)

Little Brother is New as the Moon

A beautiful story about sibling jealousy.

Change can be difficult for both big and small. Often it helps to talk to someone. Mom or dad, or another adult.

Or as in this story; a squirrel and an oak tree.

A little girl runs away from home when her baby brother is born. She is certain her parents are going to replace her. It is autumn and the air is chilly. Despite the cold, she hides in the branches of a large oak tree, deciding that she will live there for the rest of her life. Then she discovers she's not alone.

Åse Ombustvedt and Jens Kristensen (ill.)

Åse Ombustvedt (b. 1963) is a teacher, and has attended the Writers' Academy. This is her fourth book. Ombustvedt is born and raised in Våler in Vestfold, and currently resides on Jeløy.

Jens Kristensen (b. 1975) is an illustrator and visual artist. He is educated at the Norwegian National Academy of Craft and Art Industry and has in recent years illustrated a number of books for children and youth. Kristensen was raised in Åsgårdstrand and currently resides in Oslo.

Vigmostad & Bjørke – Ena forlag