What in the world!

Is it a lighthouse? A ladder? Or does it simply show the way to a buried treasure?

A group of animals discover some rocks stacked up on top of each other at the edge of the beach. None of the animals have noticed them before and wonder what the rocks are doing there. Other animals join them, and suggestions abound. What in the world could it be? This is a delightful game of wonder and repetition. The answer is both original and unexpected.
