Outlaster

Adrian leads his CS team to new victories, but now he's at risk of letting them all down.

Adrian keeps leading his CS:GO team to ever-new victories, and preparations for a big tournament are under way.

But at school, things are different. Since he panics just thinking about school, Adrian isn't keeping up in class and is at risk of failing several subjects. If he keeps skipping class, he won't be allowed to take part in the tournament – and without him, the team risks losing.

And what will Jos – who loves playing with him – think if he lets her and the rest of his teammates down?

A story about not coping at school, but also about friendship, team spirit, and gaming.
