

Vigmostad & Bjørke 2023
506 pages
Original title: Lyden av sensommer
ISBN: 9788241960024

FOREIGN RIGHTS

www.winjeagency.com

RIGHTS SOLD TO

Danish: Storytel (Audio)
Finnish: Storytel (Audio)
Swedish: Storytel (Audio)

OTHER TITLES

Check here

Laila Brenden

The Sound of Twilight

After World War II comes to an end, Ane and her family finally enjoy a few good years in Bremen. Life is full of hope and light. The children, Jørgen and his little sister Vårin, are growing up. After an eventful concert tour in Europe, Ane and Carl decide to return to Norway and their beautiful villa on the outskirts of Kongsvinger. With time, however, it becomes evident that Carl's health is not as it should be, and Ane's concern gradually becomes focused on her son as well. What lies behind his advancement in the world and why does his attitude towards her feel so hostile?

In the final novel of Laila Brenden's trilogy, set in the first half of the 20th century, we meet a mature – and courageous – Ane Solingen. She must contend with both adversity and grief, but she also experiences unexpected moments of joy. And as always, she has the support of her music.

The Sound of Twilight is the beautiful and compelling conclusion to Ane's adventures, set in Norway, Germany and other European locations.

Laila Brenden

Laila Brenden is a Norwegian author of more than 80 historical romance novels. Her book series Hannah and Mountain Roses have sold in excess of a million copies in Norway, and are published in Sweden and Poland. Brenden has also written several non-fiction books for children and adults.

Winje Agency

winjeagency.com/