One day Samira turns up at the door to the classroom. She picks the free desk next to Malte – and quite incredibly: She stays there. All Malte has to do is to avoid her coming to his house to see what a loser he really is.
But Samira is not someone who takes no for an answer.
She realises that many things are very wrong in this new place, and she wants revenge together with Malte. But how much can they really do and how much can Malte risk telling her – and: Which secrets are Samira harbouring?
