The Little Big Book of Kissing

If you've never kissed anyone, this is the book for you.

If you've kissed someone, or if you're a bit nervous about being kissed, this is the book for you.

If you hate kissing and think it's just awkward and yucky, this is the book for you.

If you've kissed a lot and think it's fun and fantastic, this is the book for you.

This playful book is bursting with fun facts about kissing and its place in history. It's cheeky, surprising, and absolutely not the kind of book you'll want to read with your parents.

Monika Steinholm, Bjørn Sortland, Therese G. Eide

Monika Steinholm (b. 1983) has published several novels for children and young adults, as well as one adult novel. Steinholm has attended the University of Tromsø's writer's programme, as well as courses in non-fiction. She was nominated for both the U- Award and the NBU's Trollkrittet Award for her debut book Fuck verden (Fuck the world).

Bjørn Sortland (b. 1968) is educated at The Academy of Writing in Bergen and debuted as a writer in 1992. He has published a number of award-winning books for children, YA and adults. He is known especially for the best-selling series The Art Detectives and Johnny 777.

Therese G. Eide (b. 1978) is a Norwegian comic artist and illustrator. She is the creator of Intet nytt fra hjemmefronten (No News on the Home Front), a semi-autobiographical comic strip, published in several newspapers and multiple books. She has also illustrated both nonfiction and fiction, for children and adults.
