

Frode Saugestad

A Young Man's Confessions of Love

:k

Kolon forlag 2013

152 pages

Original title: En ung manns bekjennelser om kjærlighet

FOREIGN RIGHTS

anne.cathrine.eng@gyldendal.no

A Young Man's Confessions of Love opens with the words «Dear Daddy». The novel is a montage of confessions, YouTube links, short movies, private letters and allegedly authentic quotes from interviews given by Frode Saugestad to newspapers and magazines, and, not least, printouts from a paternity case that, according to the heading dates, has circulated in the Norwegian legal system for 30 years.

Frode Saugestad's first novel is an aching and honest story about yearning, lost childhood, contaminated love and self-loathing, and about how an apparently successful human being purposely decides to ruin himself through lack of love in order to arise as a new person.

Frode Saugestad

Frode Saugestad (b. 1974) lives in Oslo. He is a father, academic, blogger, designer, adventurer, writer, publisher, photographer, journalist, artist, long distance runner, musician and publisher.

Kolon forlag

kolonforlag.no/