House Between Night and Day

House Between Night and Day unfolds in barely a hundred years ahead. The world is divided into enclaves where one has to be wealthy in order to gain entry. All others live outside the enclaves in a world of chaos, violence, crime and poverty. One of them is Marko Eldfell.

For five years he has been on the run from the supreme "masks", having deserted from the NATO special forces after a military operation in Georgia. He is injected with a genetic modification that makes him able to activate some special features when needed. Characteristics that makes him stronger, faster, more vigilant and able to act more rationally under pressure. Not super powers, but "super drugged" with the body's own hormones and properties. All controlled through a sort of built-in data application in the author has called the iSphere. This property is part of a human military experiment that Marko and several other soldiers in the NATO force was part of. The problem is that every time he uses his additional powers, he lits up like a red rocket on «The Mask's» radar. It is in other words a constant and persistent quest for Marko throughout the book. Through confrontations with Albanian mafia, Marko and his alcoholic doctor friend Lenny find themselves in a situation they can not get out of without help. And assistance comes in shape of a mysterious man with a bowler hat, whom pick them out of their troubles inexplicably.
