Northern Lights book 2 The Vikings and the Oracle

In the second book the story continues where we left Sonja and Espen in the woods of Jotundale, a magical Valley, only accessible through magical portals that let you travel on the northern lights.

Even though Sonja still finds Jotundale enchanting and thoroughly beautiful, a growing suspicion that there are dangers ahead, that might threaten this wonderful place, causes Sonja to worry.

One day a horde of vicious Vikings turn up in the woods together with a young girl, Lotta, of the Mountain people, who are known for their magic. As it turns out, Lotta is helping the Vikings by petrifying Trolls. Lotta's guardian, the mysterious Oracle, has agreed to help the Vikings to destroy the trolls. In return the Vikings are helping her find the enchanted tree.

In Northern lights – The Vikings and the oracle Sonja's wonderful adventures through Jotundale continues as the conflicts increase, and alliances are being put to the test. This is a true fairytale for the twenty-first century.

Bjørnar A tale from the Northern lights!

The Northern Light-series is a portal fantasy based on Norwegian folklore. One of the oldest superstitions in ancient lore is that animals could speak. This is certainly true in the series Northern Lights, and the book about Bjørnar will reveal why some animals do speak, while others do not.

But the tale about Bjørnar is first and foremost about the fight to live freely in the woods. The Vikings are coming closer and are moving further into the vast woods of Jotundale, hunting down and killing animals as they go. Worried, the animals come together for a forest council. The elders believe it's time to flee.

But Espen – a well-known character from the Northern Lights-series – interrupts the meeting and advice the animals to think twice. He believes that the animals can speak because of the magic in Jotundale. And if they decide to leave, the gift of speech will be lost!

The elders refuse to listen as they believe him to be a troll! So, all the animal-families are left to themselves to decide if they should leave or stay behind and hide from the Vikings.

- Mummy, why is daddy growling!

- Bjørnar to his mum after the forest council-meeting.
